Not illustrated. 1856 Excerpt: .Section of strata.--Coal.--Carboniferous limestone.--Cross Timbers.--Cretaceous.--Loess. This portion of the survey embraces a strip of country extending in a northeasterly and southwesterly direction, and over 300 miles in length. I cannot better introduce the few observations it is possible to make on the geology, than by quoting the general description of the section given in Captain Pope's report: The space between the eastern base of the Staked Plain and the Red river, at the parallel of 34, is occupied by that portion of northern Texas drained by the tributaries of the Colorado, the Brazos, the Trinity, and the Eed rivers. With rapidly-increasing advantages as you proceed eastward from the Llano Estacado, this region is well timbered, well watered, and possessed of a soil of extreme fertility, capable of sustaining a dense population. The entire country is so gently undulating in its surface, and presents such an abundant and well-distributed supply of wood and water, that it can be traversed in any direction with trains of wagons, and is of so genial a climate that little choice of the seasons is considered desirable in undertaking an expedition through it. A great portion of the timber of the region intersected by the Colorado and its tributaries, along this route, is the mezquite, which, about thirty feet in height, and from six to ten inches in diameter, divides about equally with the prairie lands this entire district of country. The Brazos and its tributaries are better supplied with oak...
