Brand New Book  Print on Demand .I think many times, as women, we go into life with a plan. When the plan doesn't pan out we are left with some of the hardest decisions we will ever have to make. 1.) We can allow God to make this mess into something beautiful or 2.) We can fight, tooth and nail, to become what we had dreamed about. I really believe, looking back, that God took all of the decisions completely out of my hands. That may sound silly to some. but I knew what I had wanted. If I had it my way, my life as I know it would look exactly as it does. Where I was headed would never have brought me here! Somewhere along the line, I believe God plucked me up off the road I was on and placed me on an entirely different route. At first, I was spitting mad. When my temper tantrums didn't convince God to put me back, I fell into a deep pit of depression. It was in the pit that God began to do a work on my heart. It was in the darkness, that God healed me and restored me. I've come to realize that most women aren't living their dream. Somewhere between there and where they are, disappointment gripped their heart. They have gone from big plans to merely survival. 3 babies in 35 months, newly married, planting a church and parenting a teenager was not my idea of a fulfilled life. I was exhausted and surviving was all I COULD do. What happened to the romance, and lavish lifestyle, the nights out on the town and...
